

Oxford 2024 Bob Bentley Bursary

The European Section of ISRP is offering a Bob Bentley Bursary linked to the ISRP 21st International Conference in Oxford, United Kingdom, 22nd to 26th September 2024.

Recipients will be required to attend the conference and to present a paper with funding from the Award. Full details of the conference, including paper submission guidelines are available from oxford.technical@isrp.com.

Eligibility is limited to residents of Europe and the wider area administered by the European Section of ISRP but is not limited to members of ISRP. Potential applicants uncertain of their eligibility should contact oxford.technical@isrp.com.

In keeping with Bob Bentley's passion for the support of young scientists / engineers, the bursaries are intended particularly for young persons who are relatively new to the field of respiratory protection, but there is no fixed upper age limit. Those who fit these criteria who may not otherwise be able to attend the conference are encouraged to apply for the bursary.

Successful applicants will receive free registration for the conference and a sum of up to £500 which is to be used towards covering expenses in connection with the ISRP2024 conference. They will also be given one year's free membership of ISRP. The value of the bursary will be set by the European Section Committee, whose decision is final, and who reserve the right to make no award if, in their opinion, no applicant is suitable.

Applicants should submit an abstract of the paper or papers that they intend to present, together with a CV and a brief covering letter stating why they are eligible for a bursary.

Entries to be submitted by Email to oxford.technical@isrp.com. Please type Bob Bentley Bursary into the email subject header. Closing date: 1st May 2024.

Early application is encouraged.

Applicants will be told whether they have been awarded a bursary within two weeks after the deadline of the 1st May 2024.
